Proverbs 15:1-9

There are many seasons in life where we feel alone in our struggles and difficulties. The hurt, the pain, the ongoing circumstances of life seem to get the best of us on occasion. There are times where we sense or believe that we are the only ones who are dealing with a particular issue. A belief sets in that no one can understand what we are enduring or no one can relate to what we are going through in life.

The reality, though, is that we have One who has already endured and gone through troubles in life that we ourselves could never completely understand this side of heaven. While we feel alone in our daily struggles, even when we might be surrounded by others, we have a heavenly Father who cares, knows, and completely understands!

The emptiness we sense inside can be filled by bringing it all to the Lord. We weren't meant to go through this on our own. We were meant to bring our struggles to God. He can relate and understand everything that impacts our lives. We were made for His excellence and it's time we lived in this understanding on a daily basis.
