

Uncommon Love

Exodus 32:1-9

What would it be like to deliver a message written by God himself? I imagine myself, like Moses, grasping those heavy stone tablets with awe as I descend the mountain. In anger the tablets are broken, symbolic of the covenant broken by Israel's idolatry.

God gave Moses a second opportunity to carry his Word to the disobedient Israelites. God had every right to turn his back on people who flagrantly rebelled against him. The Lord expressed again his determination to love them and be their God.

How often have I mishandled God's Word, or let it fall to the ground instead of sharing it with someone who needed it? How often have I disregarded the message God sent, listening instead to some other voice?

Thank God he responds with patient love when we disregard or disappoint him.
