

Reseeded Naturally

Description

RG AUDIO 021312 Psalm 105:1-15

Oh, if trees could talk! What a story they would tell. Many have grown for hundreds of years. The beautiful Teton National Forest portrays this. However, fire, insects, and unfavorable weather conditions take their toll. Many giant evergreen trees have nothing left but trunks strewn at odd angles along the mountainside. The amazing site reveals small- and medium-sized evergreens stretching to the clear, blue sky. Did man plant these new trees? In answer to these questions, the sign states clearly—"Reseeded Naturally." What a God we serve.

Psalm 105 reviews God's covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, his chosen ones. Humanly, it seemed impossible for a great nation to come from one man and for "strangers" who wandered from nation to nation to possess and inherit the Promised Land. God's covenant did not allow anyone to oppress his anointed.

God calls his people to continual praise and radical obedience for the past, present, and future.
