Micah 3:1-13

The Christ, of whom we speak, has come to empower us to be more than our natural humanity would allow. In exchange for your total surrender of self, God wants to fill us with his Spirit so that we will be enabled to live a life that far exceeds any ordinary existence. This is not possible through human striving. It is only reality as His Spirit flows through us unimpeded by our former selfishness.

According to Micah 3:8, we can expect this Spirit-fullness to provide at least three things—spiritual power, a sense of justice and moral courage. We will have power to give witness for Christ and exert a holy influence on His behalf. We will have an inner awareness of matters of justice and fairness. Finally, we will be given the “might” of moral courage to confront evil, to speak out and work for solutions just as Jesus did.

Dear Jesus, in this moment, may we know that this work is done in our hearts.
