John 15:26—16:15

Don't put someone who gets lost easily at the front of a car caravan. Don't send them on a mission to find something without giving them a map. Chances are that people who know they are directionally challenged are too embarrassed to ask for directions.

No Christian needs to live in such directional confusion. Before leaving this earth, Jesus promised the most reliable and always available truth guide for all believers: the Holy Spirit. He communicates nothing but the truth.

No one is a truth expert, especially about themselves. Nor do they always hold truth in their perspectives about other people or circumstances. Only the Holy Spirit sees situations from every angle. He alone knows how the truth fits into the beginning of time to the end. He will always point you to the truth, whether you want to hear it or not.

In the beginning of this New Year, no goal, dream, or human authority can point you to as much truth as can the Holy Spirit. Follow Him. You will always be exactly where you're supposed to be.
