Hebrews 11:23-34

Courage is doing something even though you are afraid. It is placing our faith in a better outcome than what we imagine in front of us. Moses' parents began his life story from a place of faith and fearlessness. They understood that there were great plans for this little boy, and trusted in God more than they feared Pharaoh. Moses grew up with that same sense of faith rather than fear. The Exodus story begins when Moses choose courage to follow God rather than fear the ruling powers of Egypt.

Trust is a driving force in fearlessness. When we recognize that we rest in the strength and power of the Almighty God, the things that frighten us seem very small. When we choose to trust the Eternal yet invisible rather than the tangible but temporal, we too find the strength to persevere through all odds. The very power of God promises to grant us strength and courage, even if we are afraid.
