2 Corinthians 7:1-10

Sometimes, God blesses us by putting one or two persons in our life who become deep and meaningful means of grace. It might be simply their presence or their uncanny ability to read you like a book and know exactly what you're feeling. To have this beautiful means of grace in our lives through a special friendship can strengthen us when we go through a dark season, not just when life is going well.

For Paul, Titus was that means of grace. Having Titus with him was a real source of strength. The community in Corinth also had passed on their encouragement and concern for Paul through Titus. It made his joy amid the trial shine brighter than day.

If you have one or two persons in your life who serve as a lifebuoy or lifebelt for you, take a moment to drop them a note of gratitude and appreciation. If you don't have someone like this in your life, pray that the Lord will send you a Titus who will walk with you and become a means of grace.
