Exodus 3:13-22

Moses asks a pretty fair question in Exodus 3:13. â??Who in the world are you, faceless voice in the burning bush?â?• However, he doesnâ??t get a cut and dry response from God in this mountaintop meeting. â??I am the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacobâ?• would at least offer a little context! No. Instead, he gets â??I AM WHO I AMâ?• (v. 14). That sounds powerful. A real mic drop. But what does it mean, really?

The original text here most likely translates as a ??! cause to bea?• (New Beacon Bible Commentary: Exodus, Pokrifka). Suddenly, Goda??s name has a lot more action to it. a ??! AM the one who caused you to be. I AM the one who caused the world to be. My very name expresses my creative power. The world is, because I cause to be. You are, because I AM.a?•

What can you say when the One who caused and causes you to be tells you to go? How is there any other answer but yes and amen?
